

You might be an addict if....

1. You have no referring doctor
2. You come from out of town (you may have a physician in your hometown)
3. You pay cash for your prescription (using insurance for script from second MD)
4. You are very complimentary (“only you can help me”)
5. You insist only one drug works well (drug of choice)
6. You request frequent breakthrough medications (more pills to “play with”)
7. You need to take medication at more frequent doses than indicated (OxyContin every 8 hours instead of every 12 hours)
8. You have had multiple treatment failures (especially injection treatment failure)
